This signature showpiece by David Reid Homes shows off exactly why these custom builders have collected so many awards. Never before lived in, the 2020 Master Builder Award winner brings to life the modern day dream of a sustainable luxury residence – bathed in beautiful natural light from its north facing aspect, crafted in recycled glass-studded Tasmanian brickwork and capturing the most spectacular panorama of The Dandenong Ranges through its smart glass windows. It's like nothing that has ever graced the top end of Thompson St, and it's bound to wow those looking for an artistic interpretation of contemporary living in the school catchment for rising star Highvale (STSA), just a 10-minute walk to The Glen. A bold façade layered in render, aluminium composite and concealed fixing rises proudly to attention on its elevated corner, immersed in Japanese gardens and hiding a heated salt chlorinated lap pool behind its private bedroom wing. The custom design detail is evident at every turn – from the commercial grade windows and automated blinds to the HIRO robes, heated Japanese toilets, and home automation which lets you control entry, lighting, heating and refrigerated cooling. Stunning Italian terrazzo porcelain walkways, premium wool carpets, a slate feature wall and airy living space present all the beauty of the mid-century revival currently dominating home design. The zoning between the bedrooms and open plan living wing makes for flexible family connection, with a European style terrace providing seamless indoor-outdoor integration.
