Gavl Auction Link: <https://x5u9a.app.goo.gl/nTiK14> Weetunga St, Fulham: Built in 1880 by Samuel White, who's father John White named the suburb of Fulham (originally Fulham Farm) after the suburb of Fulham in his native London! This Palladian influenced farm house was one of the first homes built in Fulham. The name Weetunga is also recognised by the local first nations people as a "Place of Water". Boasting a commanding presence from the street, this proud substantial home used to be on acres of land surrounding it, including vegetable gardens, horse stables and a driveway to Henley Beach road. Now situated on approximately 4023sqm of land it remains one of the largest parcels of land in the area to this day. Steeped in history this proud family home has hosted many a party, wedding and back in the day a pulpit in the withdrawing room at the front of the home was once host to Sunday services. The White family were renowned ornithologists and conservationists with many pieces of their research found in both the residence and the Adelaide Museum.
