From the vantage of the street, 'Sandcastle' occupies a bastion-like presentation. The sculptors behind the project are architects Luigi Rosselli and Raffaello Rosselli. A five-bedroom, four-bathroom house that captures stunning views, grants fluid connections between the house, garden and street, and could be comfortably occupied in all seasons without the excess often found in Sydney waterfront properties. Bold, dynamic shapes, neutral tones, and contrasting textures characterise the architects' thoughtful interpretation. Alwill Interiors collaborated with the architects on the project to create warm and inviting spaces. Established Gardens by Dangar Barin Smith create a magical feel of being surrounded by natives in the treetops framing a beautiful harbour view backdrop. Moving through the internal space, timber panelling, bricks in muted form, and an abundance of natural light create a calm and welcoming mood. The lower level comprises a rumpus room and study - generous, personable spaces that balance warmth with functionality.
