From the street, the striking façade, and angular features of 18 Saddington Crescent command immediate attention. Moments to the gentle lapping of the water's edge and enjoying stunning views out across the river, this superbly contemporary Mosman Park residence is as refined as it is practical. At the hands of renowned architect Alan McDonald, the four-bedroom, two-bathroom family home embodies contemporary living and offers a strategic floorplan capitalizing on its naturally elevated outlook. Crafted by the esteemed Brian Burke Homes, and having undergone a range of carefully integrated upgrades, the prestigious waterside residence offers a rare opportunity in the tightly held Mosman Waters enclave. Bright, well-articulated interior spaces transition to a highly polished, north-facing resort-style outdoor area. Cleverly positioned balconies to the front and rear maximise the outlook and blur the lines between inside and out. From the entrance, Tasmanian oak flooring and light Venetian polished walls create a balance of textures and a welcome embrace. The downstairs office is cleverly positioned away from the living quarters and offers versatility in its usage. Two generously sized bedrooms with built-in robes occupy the ground floor, with one opening directly onto the outdoor alfresco. The downstairs living area, complete with a built-in kitchen/bar area enjoys stackable sliding doors to the pool area and a servery window to the outside. The main living, dining, and kitchen areas are on the first floor. Capitalising on the sensational outlook, the views from this space are spectacular and capture an alluring sense of scale and elevation from the hub of the home. The master bedroom, also on the first floor enjoys fantastic views and is fitted with his and hers fitted walk-in robes and an executive ensuite bathroom. Finished with beautiful tiling, a large double shower, and a separate WC, this is also designed as a powder room. Positioned in an area celebrated for its natural beauty and upscale tranquillity, this home offers a unique vantage point in one of Perth's most desirable suburbs. The proximity to the Swan River and local amenities like the Mosman Park Golf Club enriches the daily lives of those who call it home, blending leisure and convenience in a profound lifestyle opportunity.
