Designed by award-winning Coffs Harbour architect, Frank Scahill, this unique home is the epitome of the "form follows function" principle of architecture, with its passive solar design and minimal impact on the surrounding environment, featuring exposed steel post and beam construction, suspended concrete flooring over three levels and a galvanised steel "industrial" staircase connecting the lower two floors. Set back from the road and nestled among tall native trees that support a thriving population of native birds and mammals, this property offers 5290 square metres (1.3 acres) of privacy, with magnificence of nature on glorious display from every window of the house. Well placed between the delights of Coffs, Urunga, Bellingen and beyond – this home in cool, leafy Repton is an ideal base for work, socialising, shopping, play and exploration. There's a pristine beach bounded by Bongil Bongil National Park and state forest only a few minutes down the road with forestry trails, picnic areas and coastal rainforest walks. Living here makes every day look like a holiday. If you've been yearning for a home that seamlessly blends a coastal lifestyle with a bushland setting, this is the place for you to realise that dream! The open-plan lower level boasts well-lit arched cathedral ceilings and polished concrete easy-care flooring. This level seamlessly combines a spacious kitchen, dining and living areas which lead out to a private entertainer's deck – creating an inviting atmosphere that sets the stage for get-togethers and relaxation. Also on this level is a discrete laundry with an additional toilet, and a private outside shower which is ideal for cooling off in summer. The middle level has three bedrooms all with built-in robes, and a modern bathroom. The main bedroom steals the spotlight, complete with an en suite sanctuary that features a glass-enclosed shower and a relaxing spa bathtub in which you can soak your worries away while gazing upon the breathtaking views into the treetops and being privy to the private lives of the resident wildlife. You'll also love the upper-level double lock-up garage (6mx6m) with remote-controlled door that not only offers a home for your vehicles but also provides ample storage options. Additional features: Three near new reverse cycle air conditioners Ceiling fans throughout Fully insulated ceilings and walls Built in wardrobes in all bedrooms Garden shed Town water and garbage collection Wireless NBN Close to bus stop which caters to all schools in the district Rates approximately $2,303.67 per annum Minutes away from Mylestom which offers a bowling club and restaurants, coffee shop, post office, and access to North Beach and the Bellinger River. There is no way to fully appreciate the captivating allure of this home and its enchanting bushland surrounds other than experiencing it firsthand.
