Combining ingenuity and design and following his own brief for carefully considered liveability and durability, architect Robbie Walker reinvigorated this classic Californian into his family home. Unassuming behind its modest façade, by marrying classical architecture with elements of contemporary design, he has created an exciting mix of modern elegance and industrial edginess that is instantly impressive yet still feels understated and comfortable to be in. Three bedrooms | two luxury bathrooms | Baltic timber floors | Smeg and Bosch equipped kitchen | Concrete bench tops | Baltic timber finished dining area | Jetmaster fireplace | heating and cooling | alarm | secure parking | loft office | abundant storage solutions | generous established gardens | multiple alfresco options

THINGS WE THINK YOU'LL LOVE:- The reaction from your friends when they step inside and take in the industrial edginess of the open-plan living area - A kitchen that blends premium appliances, timber and concrete in a space perfect for preparation and conversation- The versatility of the spacious loft to work as an office or a teen retreat - Being able to walk to the heart of Heidelberg, Heidelberg train station, the Austin precinct and Warringal Parklands- The hidden alfresco spaced in a landscaped wrap-around garden - Walking through the glass link to the main bedroom will always make you smile!
