Welcoming you upon arrival at 192 Dangar Street is a remarkable four-bedroom residence beautifully showcasing post-war art deco architecture. Situated amongst many of Armidale's most stunning heritage homes, this property stands out as unique with its mid-century yellow brick façade and art deco curves. The heritage features of this home continue on the inside, including 9ft ornate pressed metal ceilings, oversized picture rails, a parquetry floor and a brick fireplace, exuding character and elegance. A well-thought-out layout utilises the entire house, from the sun-drenched living room with glazing on three sides, to the oversized main bedroom featuring a charming bay window. The house has been updated with polished timber floors throughout and a fully renovated kitchen equipped with stainless steel appliances. The original bathroom adds an extra touch of vintage charm. Outside, rear vehicle access leads to a two-door colourbond lock up garage plus carport. And two secure garden sheds/wood sheds with outside toilet, providing ample storage and parking. The front yard and entertaining area, made private by a high brick wall, is perfect for family gatherings or quiet relaxation. Just a stone's throw from the town center, this property is in an excellent central south location.
