CALL FOR PRICE

This 3133m² property was purchased by the current owner 75 years ago and was one of the smaller properties at the time when the area was mostly larger farmland. Now it is the largest property left near the Redland Bay shopping and business centre. The property has 4 lots on the title making it very unique. The 73 year old existing home is in amazing condition and is a credit to the current owner. It consists of 3 bedrooms, spacious eat-in kitchen, living area, sunroom, and main bathroom. The other structures on the property include a large shed with power, garage and a several other storage and work sheds. The classic rich red soil for which Redland Bay derived its name is what makes up this property and has been the fuel to a lush salad bowl for the current owner. A bore has been the source of an endless flow of pristine water supply for keeping the crops hearty over the years. Whether you are an investor, developer or someone who may like to maintain this property in its current historical state, it's an opportunity that will never come along again. The property has been marketed for expressions of interest from prospective buyers. We are more than happy to discuss the details further with you, and if you are interested.
