24 McCusker Drive is the classic example of what brings new families to Bungendore - a larger block, spacious home and plenty of room for every day life. It is most likely to appeal to a growing family, the layout of this home would also suit the needs for multi-generational living and those who work from home as space is abundant here. Everything about this home has been well thought out for everyday living. Most importantly, the three distinct living spaces which can all be closed off if needed. At the front of the home is a large lounge and formal dining space, as well as the master suite with ensuite and walk in robe. Big floor to ceiling windows allow the morning easterly light to pour in and curtains ensure your privacy and comfort when you need a sleep in. The kitchen is centrally positioned within the casual living spaces and is very much the hub of the home. From here you can serve to the family area, casual dining or beyond to the alfresco. As you would expect from a home of this size, there is a 900mm cooktop, good storage, more than enough benchspace and you will never be too far from the action, so entertaining will be a breeze. The rumpus room is also nearby, this would be a great children's space, home gym or oversized work from home space.
