A rare find today is this unrenovated 1900's brick cottage set on a A rare find today is this unrenovated 1900's brick cottage set on a generous 875.61sqm approximate sized block. Only one bedroom with a C1950's kitchen, an interesting bathroom, living room and mud room. The property is not currently liveable as it isn't connected to the sewer, but the infrastructure is in place for the Pressure sewer system installed by Sydney Water in 2009. There are a couple of outbuildings of indeterminate age. The house has the expected high ceilings and timber floorboards and it has been recently repainted inside throughout. Natural gas, electricity and water are all connected. Only around 1.5klm from the Village shops, Cafes and Train station.
