Inspired by an industrial modernism that does away with superfluous flourish, each space is defined by simplicity, intelligence, and style. A modern material palette of engineered wood and stone is set against concrete ceilings, its minimalist colour composition best expressed by a monochromatic kitchen and the use of black joinery elements. The design is thoughtful without intending to be so, with its stylised approach embracing restrained form-making and understated simplicity. Accommodation requirements are met by three well-sized bedrooms - two with BIR sharing a main bathroom, and a third with BIR and private ensuite. An accessible and superbly styled address, features include floor-to-ceiling bathroom tiling with frameless waterfall showers, LED strip lighting, and floor-to-ceiling windows. This acclaimed Northern quarter places the cultural commons of Errol Street and Queen Victoria Market within easy reach, and boasts easy access to Melbourne Central, Flagstaff Gardens, Lygon Street, and other local Melbourne landmarks.
