New to the Market

Welcome to a home steeped in history and character, ready to create new memories with its fortunate new owners. Step back in time as you enter this double brick residence which presently features three bedrooms and three living areas. High ceilings add a sense of grandeur to the large rooms with the three fireplaces crafted into the plan. Built in 1869 as the Cundletown Police Station and Court of Petty Sessions, the original courtroom is huge and includes a crafted open fireplace and an impressive raked, timber-lined ceiling. The original two holding cells are, as you would imagine, very secure and will now provide an office and safe storage, perhaps, for documents rather than people! A tranquil retreat awaits in the private lawns and gardens with the generous 1,437sqm lot boasting a driveway on each side of the wide frontage. This means convenient and easy access to both the separate garage and the rear yard which will easily accommodate more shedding and a pool. Call for your private viewing appointment and experience the classic elegance of this fine building.
