Just like something you might see in the movies. Most developers rush to bulldoze the trees. This developer rushed to maintain the rainforest. The result is a beautiful rainforest estate where most of the houses are hidden in the forest and Cassowaries roam freely. This block is 4045 sqm (just over 1 acre) and is reasonably flat at the front sloping up as you get further in. There is a bubbling mountain stream that comes straight out of the forest and doesn't traverse any farmlands before getting to your property. The water is crystal clear and very cool and where it runs through this property there are several nice little spots for a dip. There are roughly 100 metres of creek frontage. There is a small clearing on the block with a short access track cleared. The block has town water and power at the boundary and sealed road frontage just 10 minutes to the beach or the same in the other direction to town. A very hard-to-find piece of real estate.
