A landmark beacon on the hilltop as you travel past Ross, this amazing standout historic Gothic church is not merely a building; it's a living testament to history, heritage, and the enduring spirit of a close-knit community. Experience the timeless charm of this Tasmanian treasure which, until recently, has previously been a place of worship but now, there's the unique opportunity for you to become the new custodian of this unforgettable and beautifully preserved fine Gothic architectural building; one of Tasmania's finest examples of the enduring craftsmanship of a bygone era dating back to 1882. With its incredible scale, proportions and architectural features, and sitting on just over 7,220 sqm of land, the zoning currently falls under 'Community Purpose' and offers exciting options for its future with Heritage Tasmania and Council consultation. An event venue, visitor centre or a gallery perhaps? Ideas to explore with the relevant authorities so that this incredible building becomes a "destination", adding to the existing local businesses already operating within the Ross community. With a main hall and private room at the rear, there are Permitted uses that could be explored along with those that are Discretionary. Constructed with a captivating blend of sandstone and timber, the stunning timberwork that graces the interior and the timeless elegance of vaulted Oregon pine ceilings are a true delight for architecture enthusiasts and history buffs alike. Polished floorboards through the majority of the building, an octagonal spire, Tasmanian blackwood pews, gabled slate roof, Horton window and stained glass windows, this property will take your breath away when you walk inside! The church holds the distinction of being heritage-listed on the whole title, preserving its historical and architectural significance for generations to come. As you step inside beyond the entrance, the sheer scale and proportions are incredible. You'll also be enchanted by the two exquisite stained glass windows that cast colorful, ethereal light onto the interior, creating an atmosphere of serenity, solitude and reverence. Explore this remarkable place and the township encapsulating it, to become immersed in the history and beauty that define this cherished Tasmanian landmark. This is a rare and unique opportunity to consider what may once have seemed like the impossible...and make it possible here on the hilltop in beautiful, historic Ross.
