Situated in the sought-after northern suburbs of Hobart, this humble 1934 charming weatherboard cottage offers convenience and endless potential. Upon entering, the main living area welcomes you with a formal lounge seamlessly flowing into an additional living space, complete with a reverse cycle air conditioner and a captivating feature mantel. The kitchen, bathed in natural light, offers abundant bench and storage space. Two generously proportioned bedrooms offer cosy retreats, each featuring built-in wardrobes. A third room, currently perfect as a study, could easily transform into an additional bedroom if desired. The bathroom boasts a shower, vanity with ample storage, with the toilet being separately located. The laundry area is spacious, accommodating both appliances and extra storage needs. Outside, the property is adorned with mature trees and concrete pathways, accompanied by a convenient storage shed and workshop. Covered parking is provided in the carport, with ample off-street parking available in the driveway. Conveniently located, this delightful property is in close proximity to a plethora of local amenities, ensuring a comfortable and convenient lifestyle in the thriving suburb of Glenorchy.
