This five year old home exudes class, space and quality. It is the quintessential modern family home. The floor-plan has been designed with the modern family in mind. A large open plan kitchen, dining and living area is at the heart of the home. Light and spacious this room offers the perfect space for a family to gather around a meal or as family members relax together. A parents wing is tucked away behind the kitchen and adds a luxurious touch to the home. The expansive bedroom, complete with floating bed-frame and massive walk in robe links seamlessly to the stunning en-suite that includes a large freestanding bath; twin vanity and a large double shower. The kids wing of the home isn't any less impressive. Two oversized bedrooms with built in robes and another impressive bathroom provide the perfect space for kids as they grow from toy cars and dolls through to study desks and personal space. A handy home office is also located in this second wing of the home. A third wing of the home is designated as the guest wing; the fourth bedroom also offers excellent space and a second private living area that could double as a guest retreat or media room for the family. The floor plan has been carefully designed with the modern entertaining family in mind. A large undercover deck extends off the central living space creating a natural flow from inside to out. The deck then steps down to the backyard, creating a wonderful connection from inside the house to the backyard. Landscaping for the home has been meticulously designed and constructed to complement the modern design elements of the home. The gardens are now well established and easy to care for and are connected from the front of the property to the backyard by concrete paths. A large double garage with direct access into the home is complemented by a 9m by 7m garage/workshop under the home. If you are looking for a large modern home this is an absolute must to inspect. Put simply with the current cost of building you wouldn't be able to build a home this large and of this quality for the price it is on the market for. Call today to arrange an inspection and be ready to be impressed
