Every now and again we write about the 'dream homes'. 80 Railway Street is enduring, endearing, picture perfect and in a location that is hard to surpass. The expansive size of the garden block and the solid bones of the home is ready for the next family to create their dream. This is classic Turvey Park, where established homes rest within wonderful gardens on tree-lined streets. The solitude of the nearby bush saturates the deep suburban peace. This original three-bedroom cottage, nestled, is picture perfect with its pitched roof and white facade. Feelings of another era, as garden paths usher you past stone edged garden beds towards the sunny terrace. A sense of nostalgia runs through the interior: double brick walls, high ceilings, ornate cornices and glass chandelier light fittings. The living room flows via French doors, onto the wrap around verandah, with decorative wrought iron column and romantic views across undulating lawns to well maintained gardens and mature gums. Perfect for morning coffee as the sun rises or an evening drink. This character filled home, offers light and generous airy spaces, perfect for family life and gatherings. A space for celebrations, milestones, forging connections and planting memories. The well-preserved kitchen overlooks beautiful rear yard. A row of windows with southern views, gifts sight lines to garden, excellent for keeping an eye on the kids at play. Three nicely sized bedrooms, all with leafy views and original timber built-in robes, centre around a family bathroom and internal laundry. Modern, clean shades of white, brushed brass round knobs and striking solid doors are unique features of the wonderfully well kept home. A stone kitchen bench, lined with timber panelling, is the perfect breakfast nook and ideal for chosen vintage bar stools. The entire home with its neutral palette and abundant character is calling out for treasured heirlooms, bold artworks, punchy touches of colour and pattern to make it your own.
