If you've dreamed of a home with presidential grandeur, this is your chance to move up to The White House. Designed as an English Tudor made modern, number 84 is set along Emmaus College's sporting reserve for uninterrupted green outlooks stretching all the way to The Glen. Beyond its magnificent white facade and steeply pitched roof, the stately 5-bedroom residence wraps its bedroom wing in a panoramic terrace, inviting you to savour the sweeping views from this exclusive estate. Step inside and you'll appreciate the lavish sized living space afforded you across the home's ground level with high corniced ceilings and beautiful tropical gardens as your backdrop to the formal living quarters and open plan family room. Sophisticated black granite benchtops and 90cm s/s cookware grace the kitchen, which is perfectly positioned to overlook the walled garden and its party sized outdoor room weather proofed for winter with doors and clear café blinds. In keeping with its regal architecture, an array of luxury appointments provides absolute comfort and security including spa baths, dressing rooms, central heating and cooling, ducted vacuum, video security, ornate window dressings and a large solar array to reduce your utility spend. The landscaped gardens are designed to be enjoyed with minimal care, with substantial paving for outdoor entertaining and pathways which guide you around the home's perimeter. This is a rare opening in this tightly held cul de sac which is set to connect to the coming $10.5million Healesville Fwy Reserve and its 3km stretch of new parkland, in walking distance to Vermont South Shopping Centre, bus and tram services through the east and to the city, and nearby shopping and dining at The Glen, Forest Hill Chase, Burwood One Plaza, Eastland and Westfield Knox.
