When it comes to original Angourie holiday cottages, there are scant few that have survived, making this is an opportunity not to be missed. With the sensational northerly ocean views from the front porch and uninterrupted ocean views over Back Beach and Yuraygir National Park from the backyard, this home has the quintessential requirements of an Angourie holiday cottage. 'The Rest' is in good original condition with 60 years of family living and summer get togethers permeating throughout the home - transporting you back to carefree summer holidays when 2 bedroom cottages were filled with the laughter and chaos of 16 friends and relatives! Angourie is well known within the surfing fraternity and in 2007 was the first gazetted National Surfing Reserve in NSW - although Angourie is much more than just a surfing village and is also renowned for the cool depths of the Blue and Green pools, family-friendly Spooky Beach and the sustenance and Sunday afternoon tunes at Angourie Café. The location and character of this cottage can't be beaten so be sure to inspect as soon as possible and get your finances in order for 27 January.
