Modern two bedroom apartments are getting smaller; yet this property has reversed the trend. The designers of this near new building did not waste space by lavish foyers and other largely unused amenities, but focused on good design and useful bright spaces; form and function are in unison. Apartment 1001 is no exception, perched on the north eastern corner, high above historic buildings and churches of North Sydney, capturing morning sun, yet sheltered from the hot afternoon radiation. Internally, the property has first class inclusions and it comes with modern minimalistic furniture.
