Blackbutt is a rural town 115 km north-west of central Brisbane. It is situated at the north-eastern end of the Blackbutt Range, and when settled by Europeans, the district was described as being between the headwaters of the south-flowing Upper Esk and the north-flowing South Burnett Rivers. The name was given by a Crown surveyor in 1909, using the common trade name for various species of dark-barked eucalypts. The Phone Code for this property is: 70018.
